A PRIMARY ELECTION.

We now feel usured that the plain, sumifest duty of our party, and all who love their country with patriotic fervor, is to give in our affegiance to the Liberal party for the present, at least; to receive them as affies, met and united in the conflict to battle for the one great, leading purpose, to-wit: The overthrow of the Grant dynasty. This accomplished, there will be no trouble in making further treaties with them, and thus form a great treaties to know how to steer our bark!

There is not a Democrate in the South this Democratic? Is it just or wise. Is this Democratic? Is it just or wise, the election of the Liberal ticket.

It is characteristic of the Americans, the they will and do intrust the chief Magistracy to their most victorious Generals. This is the long and the short of it, and "if this be treason" to the Democratic party, "then make the most of it."

But this is not treason; it is, rather, the continuent of honest hearts, whose love of country is dearer far than love of party. We have now, for the first of party. We have now, for the first of the Cincinnati convention.

The almost aniversal expression of the Kentucky press, both daily and weekly, has been that of a hearty indersement of the results of the Cincinnati Convention. Five consistent Democratic newspapers of the Cincinnati Convention.
